

Master's program "Teaching English at secondary and higher educational institutions"

1. About the program. The program is realized at the department of educational technologies and information systems in philology of Higher school of Russian language and cross-cultural communication of the Institute of Philology and Intercultural Communication named after Leo Tolstoy by KFU. It is organized by the principle of creative cooperation between students and teachers. Trainees master the unique educational discipline, the theory of modern technologies of teaching English in secondary and higher educational institutions, using the latest tools of language training, the development and use of electronic educational resources, training for international language certifications, etc. Students masters during the scientific research practice are accustomed to teaching and research activities in secondary and higher educational institutions.

2. Academic staff. Professors and doctors of pedagogical and philological sciences: I.E. Yarmakeev, R. A. Fakhrutdinova, L.L. Salekhova, A.G. Sadykova, M. I. Solnyshkina and other leading teachers of the Institute of philology and cross-cultural communication of Lev Tolstoy are involved in the implementation of the master's program "Teaching English at secondary and higher educational institutions".

3. Career opportunities. Graduates of the master's program are widely demanded, they work in gymnasiums and lyceums, higher educational institutions, and also in organizational and administrative structures, in the scientific-educational and expert-analytical centers, etc. A number of masters graduates continue training in postgraduate study.

4. Partners. Institute of pedagogics and psychology of professional education of the Russian Academy of Education, Moscow institute of foreign languages.

5. Contacts. Doctor of pedagogical sciences, professor Iskander Engelevich Yarmakeev (ermakeev@mail.ru; (843) 2939450; 89033051538)