

The article is devoted to the problems of student's education and the development of professionally important personal features such as conflictological competence, which can be formed in the course "Foundations of Conflictology" as a socially significant University discipline. The target audience is students, post graduates, lecturers of psychological and pedagogical faculties. The research results can be the basis of lectures, seminars and practical classes at higher school.